“ Sister Barb and I met Joy at the Excelsior Bus Stop 70 years ago. Everyone else looked different so we immediately stayed together. After school we met at our house because my mother baked every day. Later Barb and I would go home and Joy was already there with our mother greeting us at the door. We were Yankees and then she found out we were Catholics and couldn't eat meat on Fridays. We would wait until after midnight to get a hamburger .All those years later here we are. Joy, I planted a tree for you, Barb and Ginny and we can still be together for at least another 70 years. I said to you many times "say good night Gracie" now I say it one more time. Love you Joy.
